

Behold Pretty Mamma, All Things are Become New!

Hey pretty lady, let me announce truth to your ear.
Your salvation is coming, in fact He's already here!
Lift up your chin and put a smile on your face.
Look at how far you've come, you're gonna win this race.
The past is behind you so leave it alone.
When you hear it ringing, don't pick up the phone.
Leave depression and despair in Hell where they belong.
Rejoice in your Savior, sing Him a new song.
There's no time to reminisce about all the bad.
Nor should you worry about the future, leave that to Dad.
He's proud of you and what you're learning to be.
You're too hard on yourself, hey listen to me.
Despite what your thoughts tell you, you're beautiful, wise and smart.
The media has got it all wrong, you're the work of art.
You were fabulously made, God created you in the image of Him.
Satan burdens you because he wants your light to dim.
So continue to press forward, don't stagger your pace.
The victory is already yours, put a smile on your face.

Okay so maybe this poem wasn't enough.
But guess what pretty mamma, this road is going to stay tough.
So slick back your hair and put your boxing gloves on.
No time to get weary, your oil has got to last until Dawn.
So stick it out the best way you can.
As often as you like, take refuge in His hand.
He is watching you with ever so much care,
He knows what you can handle, He knows what you can bear.
Don't walk away moping, feeling dread or despair.
Here what I'm saying clearly, Jesus does care for you in more ways than you or I know.
Relax, receive joy, trust in Him as you grow.
For He loves you so much that He will never quit performing the things that He's promised. To you He will commit.
